

Data Walk: Wichita Business Journal BUSINESS

Accessible Version

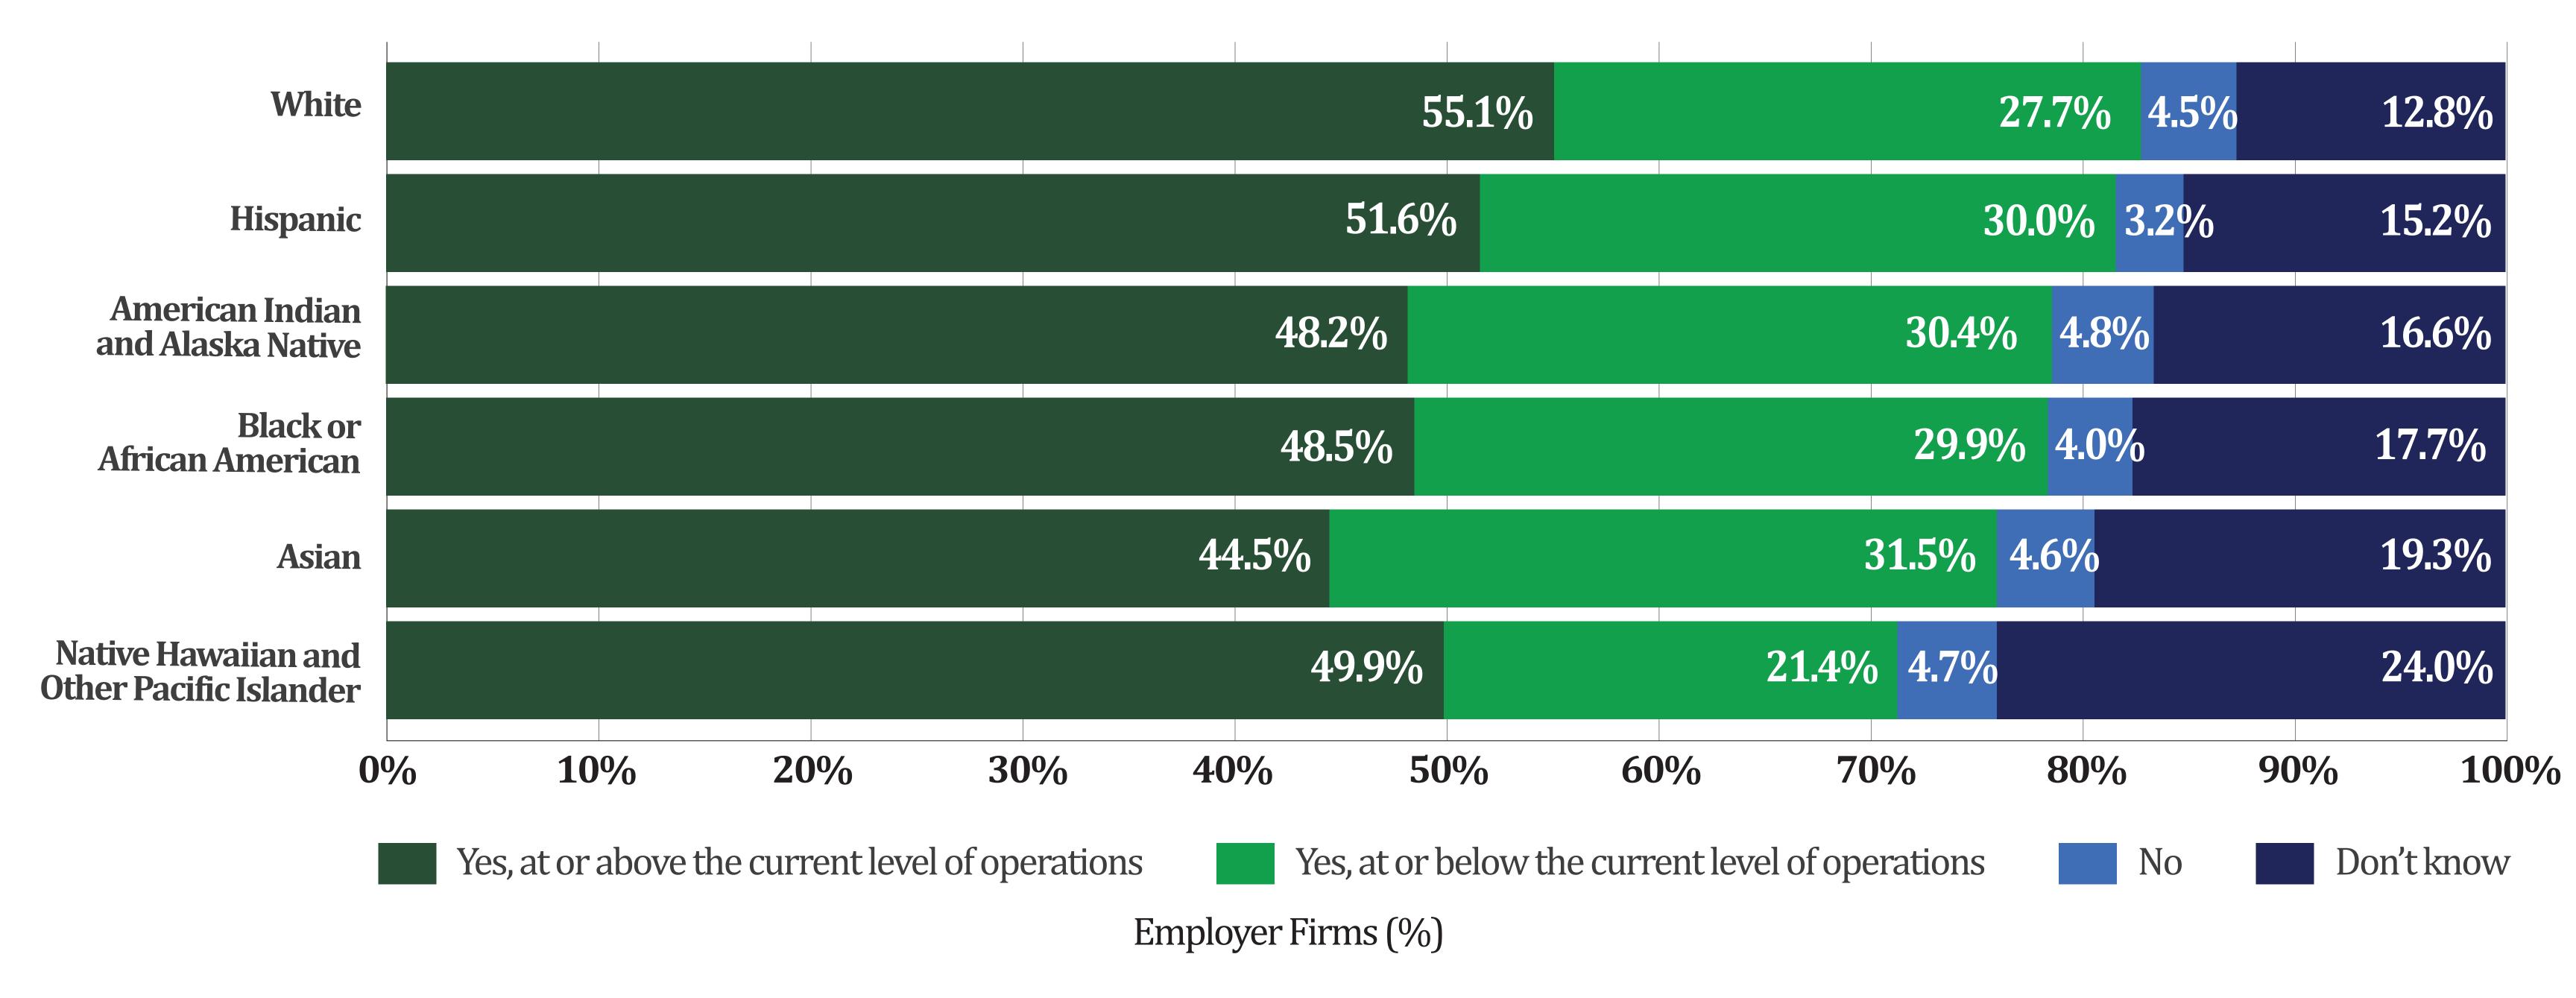

What This Measures:

Business owners of employer firms' reported expectations for continued business operations into 2023 by race and ethnicity in the United States.

UNCERTAIN FUTURE

In 2022, about half of all business owners across all racial and ethnic groups reported that they anticipated continuing operations at or above their current level. However, business owners of color reported more uncertainty for their firms' continued operation.

Expectation for Continued Business Operations into 2023 by Business Owner Race and Ethnicity in the United States, 2022

Note: Survey of business ownership (51 percent or more of the stock or equity in the business) and categorized by firms. Firms with no majority owner were asked to report demographics for up to 4 persons owning the largest percentages of the business (minimum of 10 percent ownership). Firms were only counted once per totals in each racial group but could be included in more than one group if sole, majority (51 percent), or majority combination of owners reported to be of multiple races. Source: Preliminary Data from U.S. Census Bureau and National Center for Science and Engineering Statistics, 2022 Annual Business Survey.

Why this is important: Business ownership has been an important tool for generational wealth development in the United States. In 2019, equity from business ownership formed 34 percent of household nonfinancial assets, second only to home ownership (45 percent). However, inequitable historical policies such as redlining, restrictive covenants and exclusionary zoning policies barred communities of color from building wealth in these ways. Today, although businesses owned by people of color are growing, the lasting impact of these policies can create additional challenges for entrepreneurs of color who are seeking small business loans because of the common requirement to be able to personally guarantee the loan. During the COVID-19 pandemic, business owners of color also experienced greater earning losses than White business owners.

(Source: U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, U.S. Small Business Administration, Urban Institute, Kansas Department of Commerce.)

Funding and Support Provided by Analysis and Design by An Initiative of WICHITA BUSINESS JOURNAL KANSAS DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION LEADERSHIP CENTER KANSAS HEALTH INSTITUTE KANSAS HEALTH Informing Policy. Improving Health. FOUNDATION