

Data Walk: Reading Summit

DEMOGRAPHICS

Accessible Version

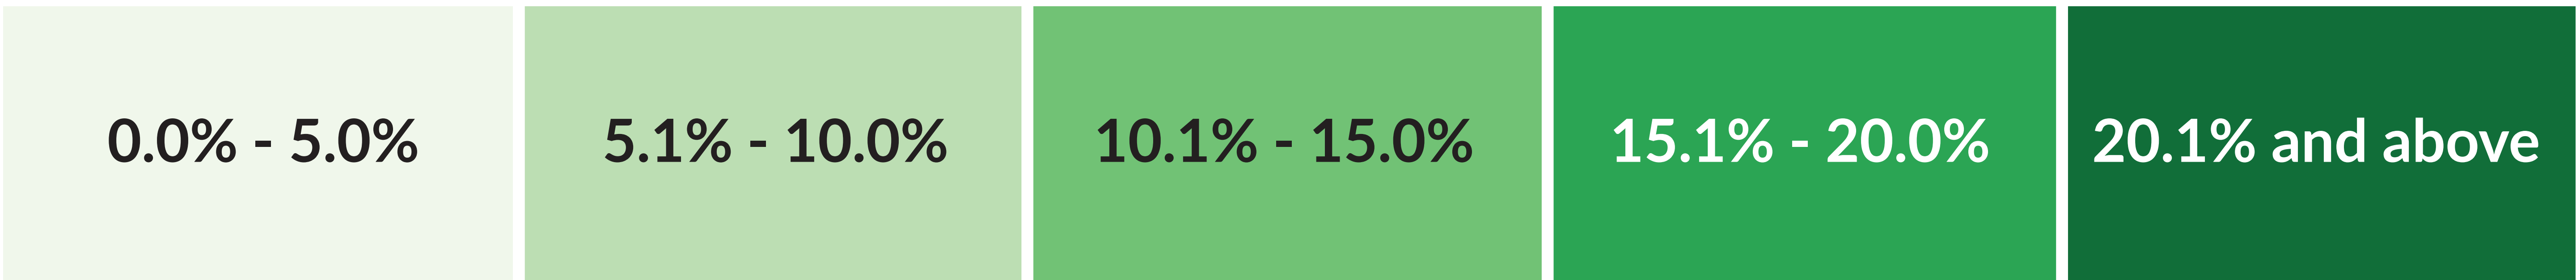

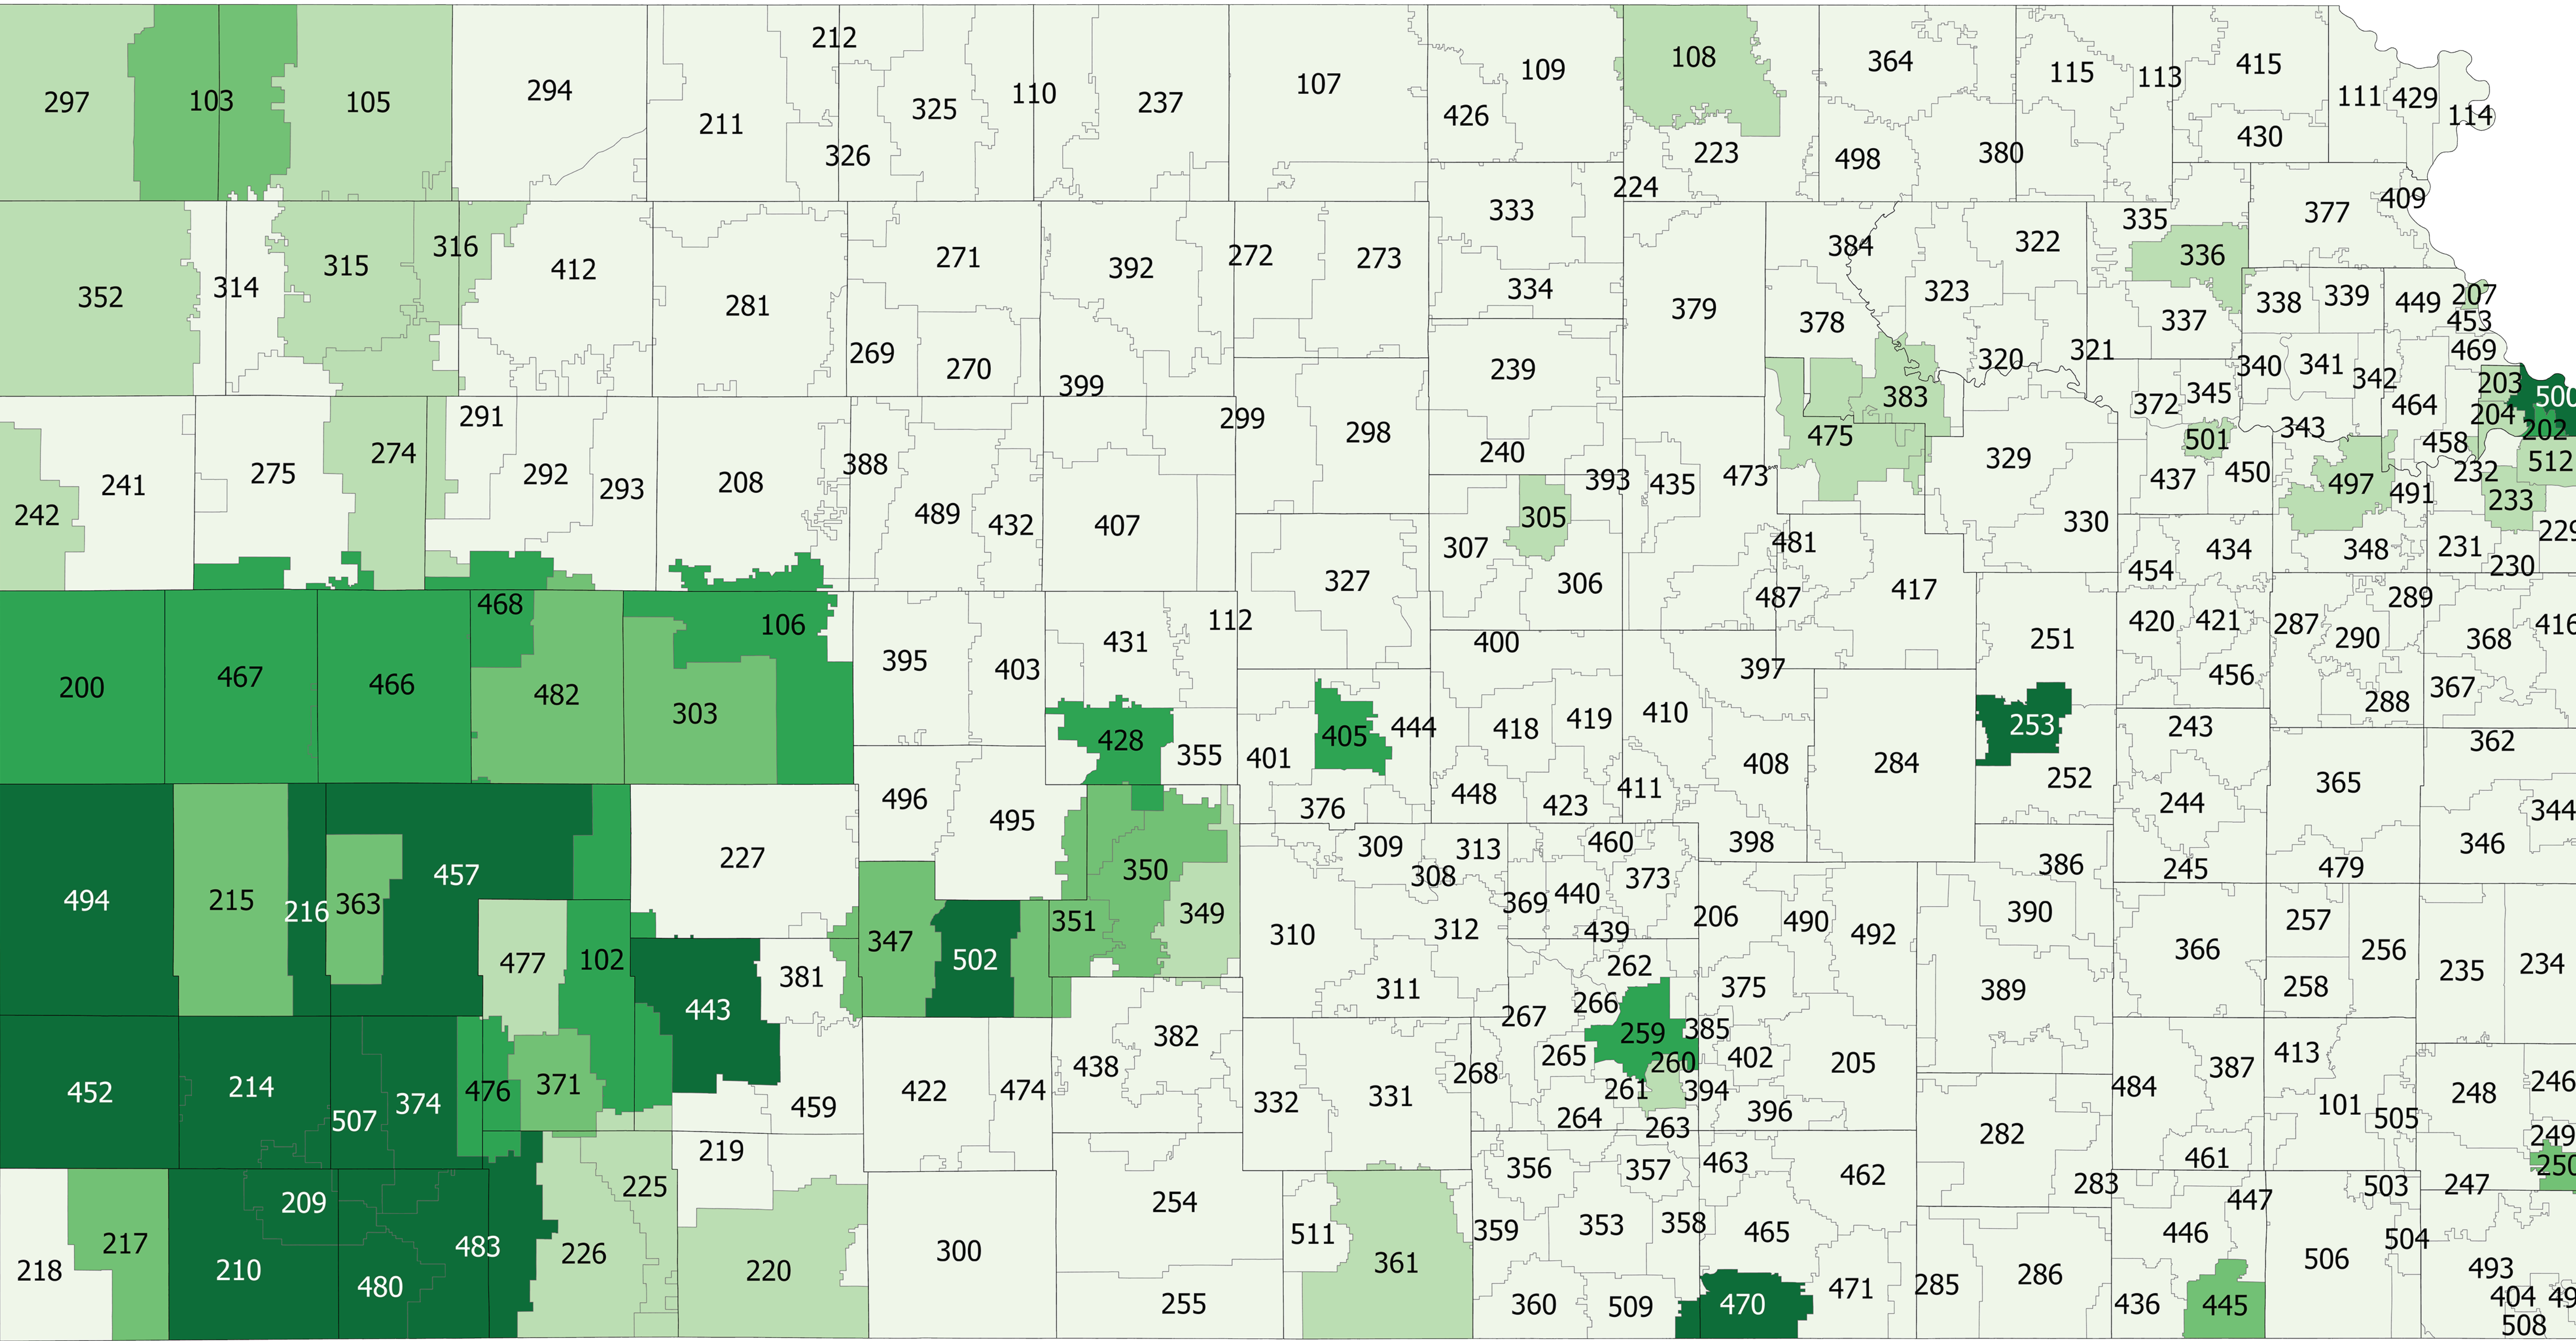

What This Measures:

Percent of Students by English Language Learner (ELL) designation by Unified School District (USD) in Kansas, 2022–2023.

English Language Learners

Unified School Districts in southwest Kansas have a greater proportion of ELL students than in other areas of Kansas.

Percent of English Language Learner (ELL) Students by Unified School Districts (USD) in Kansas, 2022–2023

9.2%
Kansas Overall

Note: Unified School Districts are public school districts.
Source: Kansas Health Institute analysis of Kansas State Department of Education, Kansas Building Report Card, 2022-2023.

Why this is important: Limited English proficiency can be a barrier to completing high school graduation requirements, attending college, obtaining employment, accessing health care services and understanding health information. Federal law requires that schools provide additional support to enrolled English Language Learners and evaluate progress toward English proficiency.

(Sources: U.S. Department of Justice; Healthy People 2030; Migration Policy Institute.)